The Washington Post 2006 Distinguished Educational Leadership Award Winner and 2007 Maryland State Middle School Principal-of-the-Year

Engaging diverse school communities is critical to leading change in middle school. This Washington Post 2006 Distinguished Educational Leadership Award Winner and 2007 Maryland State Middle School Principal-of-the-Year will share strategies for implementing and sustaining change. The session will focus on strategies for building a student-centered/data-driven middle school program and an award winning character education program. Participants in this session will review the process used to create a team vision and mission, develop data collection tools, design professional development to analyze data and plan for instruction, and involve parents and students in the process.
