Partnerships between secondary and postsecondary institutions can help facilitate the academic transition from high school to the college/university for students by broadening awareness, increasing readiness and strengthening their academic foundation. These relationships provide substantial benefits not only for the students, but also for the institutions involved. At this session, representatives from four institutions will share strategies for developing partnerships, the lessons learned in the process of creating partnerships, initiatives developed as a result of partnerships, and the benefits for staff and students of partnerships. Participants will learn ways for schools and higher education institutions to cooperate effectively to engage and prepare students for the next phase of their education.
